

MICHIGAN MAIN STREET

Lunch and Learn Series 2020

Is your downtown management organization interested in sparking board engagement and building momentum? If so, this is a MUST attend event for you.

Join us for a no-cost Michigan Main Street Lunch and Learn for “Building Board Member Engagement,” featuring Jeff Siegler from “Revitalize or Die.”

TRAINING OVERVIEW

During the workshop, we’ll have an honest conversation with local communities about the shortcomings of most downtown management boards. With good intentions in mind, most boards are assembled with the idea that board members will not be asked to do very much. This creates a situation where boards are flawed from the very beginning and an organization struggles to meet its mission.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN...

- How important comprehensive downtown management is to a community and what should be expected from board members;
- How to incorporate accountability measures to ensure expectations are being met and the community’s standards are being upheld;
- What it takes to develop and maintain the type of board a community needs to experience transformative revitalization and why the cost of not taking action is far too high.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

- Downtown/neighborhood commercial district management organization executive directors/ staff/board members
- Local business/property owners
- Community champions/volunteers
- Local municipal leaders and staff
- Stakeholders from community partner organizations
