MICHIGAN ARCHAEOLOGY DAY 2022

Welcome to Michigan Archeology Day. Whether this is your first Archaeology Day or one of many, we are happy to have you here. Archaeologists who work throughout Michigan are stationed throughout the first and second floors of the museum where they will share about their research, show you some of the artifacts they have found, and answer your questions. Check out the hands-on activities for kids—you can watch a flintknapper make stone tools and everyone can try throwing a spear using an atlatl. Feeling adventurous? Join a scavenger hunt! Have an artifact that you want to learn more about? Show it to our Archaeology Roadshow experts! With so many activities to choose from, you may need to take a break. Join special presentations in the Forum auditorium. Tour the galleries, make a clay pinch pot, have a seat in the auditorium, ask lots of questions and have fun!

To support the preservation of archaeological artifacts and sites, no monetary values will be provided at this event. Michigan Archaeology Day is presented in partnership by the Michigan History Center, the Department of Natural Resources, the State Historic Preservation Office and the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

Stop at our welcome table for event information and pick up your free archaeology poster, while supplies last.

COSMOPOLITAN MICHILIMACKINAC: EXCAVATING A COMMUNITY

PRESENTER: Lynn Evans, Curator of Archaeology, Mackinac State Historic Parks The Straits of Mackinac has been a popular summer gathering place for thousands of years. When the French established an outpost in the region, they were drawn by the presence of Anishnaabek and Huron people already living there. More than just a fort housing military and government personnel, eighteenth century Michilimackinac was a vibrant, multicultural community. Michilimackinac was made up of men, women and children of Anishnaabe, French Canadian, British, German-Jewish and African American heritage, as well as various combinations of these. The community For over sixty years, archaeologists and historians have studied this complex place. unrecorded details of daily life: what people ate, what they wore, how they organized Mackinac State Historic Parks Curator of Archaeology, Lynn Evans, to learn the stories

From the late 1930s through the mid-1950s, Detroit's Paradise Valley neighborhood was methodically removed from the landscape and replaced by I-75 and two federal public housing projects, the Brewster Homes and the Douglass Homes. Prior to this, Paradise Valley had been, first, a Russian Jewish immigrant neighborhood and then a thriving center of African American commerce and social life in the city. The demolition of the Douglass Homes buildings in 2013-2014 and subsequent plans to redevelop the site have provided archaeologists with an unprecedented opportunity to explore the dynamics of community, social inequality and cycles of urban redevelopment in 20th century Detroit.
